THE PURSUE OF A DREAM

Interview by SHANNEN TIERNEY @shannen.tierney

Things didn't look too good for people like Tala in her home country, Iran. Born in the post-revolution era, she still managed to fulfill her dreams with hard work and sacrifices. Now she is both a model and a Pharmacist, getting ready to launch her own supplement line in 2022.

How has your degree in pharmacy helped you be more knowledgeable in your passion for health and beauty?

Pharmacy and beauty can be related in many ways especially when it comes to the supplements you need as part of your diet to maintain a healthy skin and hair. In fact, I am working on my own supplement line which is a combination of both my careers, Fashion and Pharmacy.

What was it like being a model while also pursuing your degree?

It was not easy. Being a full-time student in Pharmacy school is not an easy thing to do by itself. There were times where I had to study while the hair stylist was working on my hair or times where I held my book all along a casting call. It was hard but I did it. I never wanted to give up on any of my careers.

What made you want to pursue modeling?

Modeling was my childhood dream. On the other hand, I got offers from designers and got so many compliments from people that I reminded them of fashion models therefore I went for it.

You've done a lot of traveling.

What's one place you've visited that you'd love to go back to and why?

Switzerland. It is a land of dreams. That land looks nothing like the rest of the world. Everything looks beyond beautiful there.

What's something you wish would change about the modeling industry and why?

I wish there was more respect. Some designers treat models based on their range of followers or how popular they are. I don't like discrimination.

How would you describe your style?

Chic. I prefer to dress up classy rather than sexy. I prefer to show more of my knowledge than my skin.

If you could go back in time to live in any decade which would it be and why?

50 years ago in my home country, Iran. Before the revolution, the country was in peace, and Iran was considered a great country. As the regime changed so many people including me and my family had to leave to pursue our dreams as it was no longer to do so in Iran.

“I felt proud every

my life because I suffered to get where I am.”

What is a moment in your career that you felt the proudest of yourself?

There was not one moment. I felt proud every second of my life because I suffered to get where I am, I put so much effort and worked hard. But the proudest day of my life was the day of my white coat ceremony.

What are some of your favorite beauty products?

La Prairie is my favorite brand.

On days when your work life may feel like too much, how do you like to de-stress?

I do my best to take small breaks but if I have time I spend a couple of hours at a spa for a little “me time”.

If you could organize a dinner with any 5 people who's acted as an inspiration to you, who would you invite?

Elon Musk, Oprah Winfrey, Anthony Fauci, Michael Jordan, and Jeff Bezos.

Do you have anything new you'd like to pursue in 2022?

Yes. My goal is to have my supplement line out in the market this year.

L O N D O N

AIMEE SMALE

We had the pleasure to interview AIMEE SMALE, the face behind the British fashion brand ODD MUSE.

How did you start in fashion?

I studied Fashion Buying at University in London and started working in a buying team with ASOS.com when I graduated. I learned a lot about the logistics behind starting a fashion brand. Bringing visions to life in my head felt so distant until I was in a position where I was assisting buy and import stock all over the world, I built relationships with suppliers and gained the confidence to start my own brand.

What is your favourite part of being a fashion designer?

In any creative industry, I think the feeling of your vision starting off as an idea in your head, or a sketch on a piece of paper to live in the flesh is the most rewarding feeling. When I worked in Fashion I was not given the opportunity to be so creative as it was an entry-level low paid job, and I was always swamped with crazy amounts of admin, so I guess a favorite part of mine is the freedom.

What inspires you to create amazing collections season after season?

I am inspired by re-occurring trends, and how ODD MUSE can elevate shapes while with-holding their timeless element for years to come. Alongside a high-quality standard, this is what I believe Investment Fashion to be. To put into context, our best-selling Ultimate Muse Blazer was inspired by the essential that is a womenswear blazer. We created a completely unique version, with a pointed hem sleeve and a range of belts to revive the blazer in your wardrobe. It is innovative but timeless.

How would you define the ODD MUSE woman?

The ODD MUSE woman has always seen value in her clothing, she invests in her wardrobe and loves to shop with smaller, exclusive brands. We also feel we capture this same woman at a younger stage in her life, as she matures and starts to earn her own money, she gradually comes away from cheaper brands and starts to see value in collectively investing into pieces. I feel ODD MUSE helps the young, sometimes hesitant, woman to really start to see the value in shopping premium.

Who is on your wish list to dress?

The ODD MUSE dream is to see Hailey Bieber in the Ultimate Muse Blazer, she embodies the ODD MUSE woman.

How is working in fashion different today than from when you started out?

I started working in Fashion 3 years ago after my studies, I don't think much has changed in this time however I think there needs to be a change and this is partly what contributed to me starting Odd Muse. Working in Fashion is fiercely competitive, pay is low and progression is slow. I have a small team currently, but I am dedicated to working with young creatives and growing together.

What role do you think social media plays in fashion today?

Social Media has made Fashion so fast, trend-heavy, less creative, and somewhat unrealistic. This was something I wanted to challenge. I appreciate luxury brands for, not only their quality but their slowness and longevity. However, Instagram is dominated by Influencers promoting a new fast-fashion outfit every day and young girls feel the need to keep up. I think the world is changing, the younger consumer is gradually seeing more value in something that has the potential to hang in their wardrobe for years to come, that is made more ethically.

“I feel ODD MUSE helps the young woman to really start to see the value in shopping premium.”

How do you want women to feel when wearing your clothes?

Confident and exclusive. This is always in my mind when designing, and I always ask myself how I feel whenever I try a pro-type on.

If you could go back and tell yourself one thing before beginning your career what would it be?

I am still so young, so I still feel in a position where

I am learning and growing but the beginning was tough. I would probably want to reassure myself that everything is temporary, I was working very hard in such a low-paid job but the knowledge I gained was so valuable to my success today.

Where do you see yourself in the next ten years?

I have seen what my brand can do in less than one year, I have so many plans for the next ten years which I know we are capable of. I want to grow in markets worldwide, we send orders all over the world but I am keen to grow these markets by having a stronger presence.
